

DISPENSATION FOR CATHOLICS. Those in St. Louis Diocese Excused

From Fasting in Lent. Archbishop Kain has excused all of the Catholics in the St. Louis diocese, which in cludes St. Louis and the eastern part of the State of Missouri, from fasting in the coming season of Lent.

The Information will be officially made known in the following circular letter, which will be read in all of the Catholic churches in the diocese to-morrow:

will be read in all of the Catholic churches in the diocese to-morrow:

Reverend Dear Sir-Owing to the widespread prevalence of the grip and the many serious and even fatal consequences following this insidious disease, you will announce to your people that they may consider themselves entirely exempt from the obligation of fasting during Lent, but not from the obligation of fasting during Lent, but not from the obligation of abstinence, unless on the advice of their physician.

We do not exercise the power of granting a general dispensation throughout our diocese, but we officially interpret the mind of the church that the law of fasting does not bind in view of the unhealthy condition existing and of the grave dangers that might arise from its observance. Yours truly, Pebruary 15, 1801.

The dispensation to the Catholic Catho

The dispensation is the third of its kind which has been promulgated in the St. Louis diocese. The first was in the epidemic of cholera which prevailed in 1896. The other was some years later, when influenza became so prevalent that it amounted to an spidemic.

FLAG FROM MAJOR SWEET INTERESTS ST. LOUISANS.

Military Governor of the Island of Jolo Has Many Friends in This City.

FORTY YEARS IN ARMY.

The gift of the Mohammedan flag sent to Missouri Commandery, Military Order of the Loyal Legion, by Major Owen J. Sweet of the Twenty-fifth United States Infantry is one that has proved a curiosity and has been viewed with interest by many foreigners as well as local military men.

Major Sweet is perhaps the best-known St. Louis army officer now in the Far East. For several years previous to his departure for the Philippine Islands he was United States recruiting officer in St. Louis. He is now in command of a detachment of infantry in the Third Military District of Minando and Jolo, and is Military Governor of the Island of Jolo.

About forty years of Major Sweet's life have been spent in the army, beginning from his command as a Captain of volun-teers in the Civil War. Years of Indian warfare and frontier service, followed by a detail as recruiting officer in St. Louis, have given Major Sweet both the experience and the polish of the ideal army officer.

He-counts his friends in St. Louis by the hundreds, and of these none is more enthusiastic over Major Sweet's record in the Philippines than John H. Terry, himself an old army officer.
"I first met Major Sweet at Binghamjon.

"I first met Major Sweet at Binghamion, N. Y., in the early days of the Civil War," said Mr. Terry. "He is a native of Binghamton, and organized in his native town Company B of what was afterwards a part of the One Hundred and Thirty-seventh New York Volunteers. I organized Company D of the same regiment, at Ithaca, and took them to the rendezvous at Binghamton. The regiment was commanded by Colonel Dave Ireland, a regular army officer. While in camp I became intimately acquainted with Major Sweet, then Captain, and our comradeship was further cemented by the campaign in which we both fought.

"We were ordered to Washington and into camp of instruction immediately after we were mustered in. While marching up Pennsylvania avenue our regiment made such an impression upon the Adjutant General that he ordered us to 'about face,' and put us through the paces. We were immediately ordered to the front and took part in the battle of Antietam only a few days after our muster-in. Our regiment assisted in driving Stonewall Jackson from Harper's Ferry, and immediately afterwards participated in the battles of Winchester and Dumfreese. We were also in several skirmishes as a part of General Sheridan's command when he devastated the Shenandoah Valley.

"In the early spring of 1881 we took part in the battles of Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. Through all this strife Major Sweet was a vallant officer and much beloved by his army associates. He remained in the army until the close of the war, taking part in Sherman's famous march to the sea. He was mustered out as captain of Company B, and soon afterwards came to St. Louis, entering the insurance business.

"This did not prove to his liking, and he

This did not prove to his liking, and he applied for an appointment in the regular army through Senator Rosece Conkilng of New York. He received an appointment as Second Lieutenant. He went at once with his command to the West, and for many years engaged in suppressing the frontier troubles.

GIRL PLEADS HER MRS. EDDY ADVISES

Miss Katie Belleville Dispenses fells Christian Scientists to Al-With an Attorney and Is Acquitted in East Side Court.

Miss Katie Belleville, a pretty, black-eyed brunette, was the defendant in Justice Driscoll's court in East St. Louis yesterday afternoon on a charge of threatening to kill her erstwhile friend, Miss Mubel Butler, aged 15 years.

Miss Belleville had no money to pay an attorney for her defense, so she pleaded her own case, and as a result of her eloquence the same room and were such close companions that they were often mistaken for

Last Tuesday they quarreled. That night Miss Butler refused to spend the night is the same room with Miss Belleville, and in the morning the quarrel was renewed with some bitterness. Both girls grew very angry, it is said by witnesses of the affair. Wednesday afternoon Miss Butler swore out a warrant for Miss Belleville, asking that she be placed under bond to keep the peace, claiming that she had threatened to kill the complainant with a knife.

Miss Believille was arrested, but released

Miss Belleville was arrested, but released on her own recognizance to appear for trial yesterday. When the case was called yesterday both principals and their witnesses were in the courtroom. Justice Driscoll noticed the absence of an attorney for the defense and suggested to Miss Belleville that the trial be postponed until she could engage a lawyer.

Miss Belleville replied: "I have no money to pay a lawyer and I will plead my own case. I am ready to go ahead with the trial." This speech was received with cheers from the spectators and the case proceeded. Miss Butler told her side of the story and several witnesses were examined. It was apparent that the affair was only a girls' quarrel, and the alleged threat made by Miss Belleville to bring Miss Butler's life to a sudden end was not proved.

Miss Belleville was an excellent witness for herself, and Justice Driscoll discharged her. This decision brought a round of applause form the spectators. Friends of the two girls say they will kiss and make up before another week is past.

6212-LADIES' FANCY WAIST. 8032-LADIES' THREE PIECE SERT. Waist, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inch bust. Skirt. 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30 inch weist. This lovely evening tollet is developed in pale gray crepe de Chine, combined with ruby panne, sable fur and an applique of silver on the skirt.

To make the skirt in the medium size will require six yards of thirty-six-inch material. The pattern, No. 862, is cut in sizes for a 2, 3, 3, 23 and 30-inch waist measure.

Girls' Dress, No. $222—Light gray French finned, embroidered with red polks dots, is here prettily trimmed with velvet to match the dots.

The entire body of the walst is tucked and arranged on a fitted lining, which closes in the center-back. The neck is completed by a velvet collar. The velvet is applied to form broad revers back and front, which extend out over the shoulders, and form a V-shaped vest.

The one-piece sieeves fit the arm closely, from shoulders to ellows, but flare widely at the lower edges, where they are arranged on narrow valvet wrist-bands, over which they droop in a stylish manner.

The full skirt is enthered and adjusted at the edge of the fitted body, the joining being hidden by a velvet belt. It closes invisibly at the center-back.

Attractive little dresses in this mode may be made of covert, cheviot, cashmere, Henrietta or serge, with silk, velvet, braid or lace for trimming.

To make the dress for a girl of 8 years will require three yards of thirty-six-inch material and three-quarters yard of velvet. The pattern, No. 822, is cut in sizes for girls of 6, 8, 10 and 12 years.
